Matt Swarbrik – Holistic Decision Making

Making Decisions is the fundamental way we interact with the world, yet it's often something we are not taught to do and nor is something that conventional permaculture design really thrives at. We look at how Holistic Decision Making works and how it can help your life, relationship or project really make what you deeply want come more true.

Looby Macnamara – Design Adventures with Cultural Emergence

Play with the Cultural Emergence Empowerment & Design Deck (CEED deck) to create designs for yourself.

Paul Jennings – Beyond the Bubble: Inclusivity and Permaculture

Half a century ago, Permaculture was envisaged as a wildfire movement, spreading ideas as rapidly as possible to a world in desperate need of change. This will be a discussion about Permaculture's reach into wider society. If we really want to change the world, how should we go about widening inclusivity and putting the Permaculture toolbox in the service of as many communities as possible? What might Permaculture education look like if inclusivity were our central goal?

Emily Unsworth White – Sing Harvest!

Come learn traditional seasonal songs with community artist and gardener Emily Unsworth White. We'll sing hearty harvest songs and odes to the land whilst walking around the site, with sheltered space in case of rain. Simple and silly, taught in rounds and harmonies, welcoming all abilities.
